Right click Diablo Ii Cinematics Disc Iso and selectÂ Save Target As.Q: Attaching this to a different element with jQuery I have a accordion menu and each element within the accordion has an id="action-one". I'm trying to attach this javascript so that it will be consistent for the rest of the menu. What I have so far: `$(document).ready(function(){`

`$('#div.content-wrapper #action-one').on('click', function(){ $(this).css("font-weight", "bold"); });`

I only have a reference to this element as it's part of a menu system. Cheers. A: How about the more selector: `$('#div.content-wrapper').on('click', '#action-one', function(){ $(this).css("font-weight", "bold"); });` A: It looks like you're trying to bind the click handler to the elements with the class content-wrapper. So the selector should be: `$('.content-wrapper #action-one').on('click', function(){ //... });` Alternately you could bind it to all the divs that have a class of content-wrapper, either by using a class selector or the more general.children(): `$('.content-wrapper').on('click', '#action-one', function(){ //... });`

Russell Westbrook (left) and Kyrie Irving have been on good teams in the past. Andrew D. Bernstein/NBAE via Getty Images Could LeBron James, or more likely, LeBron James and Paul George, wind up with Oklahoma City's Kevin

Durant in free agency? If it is to happen, we'd have no idea about it until a mid-July announcement. But the Thunder can't afford to rest on their laurels. Here are five things they must do between now and July 1 in order
