Granville Hall Granville Hall is an 1828 modified Palladian mansion at Cold Spring Harbor on Long Island, New York. It was designed in 1828 by John McComb Jr. in the "Plantation Plain" or "Dutch Colonial" style. It is a two-story brick building with a hipped roof supported by stone piers. The three bays are symmetrical, with a center bay larger than the others. The porch was added in 1912 by Mr. Cuthbert S. Hall. In 1998, it was added to the National Register of Historic Places. It is located just west of the southeast corner of Granville Point, a peninsula of land between Long Island Sound and the Amagansett Bay of the Atlantic Ocean, which is protected as Granville State Park. It is surrounded by the homes of Bobolink Point, Crab Meadow, and Virginia Water. It is situated at the mouth of Granville Creek, which empties into Narragansett Bay. The house was originally built in 1829 for George B. McClellan, who came from a family of wealthy tobacco farmers in Virginia. It is now operated as a restaurant with room for private parties. o, one hand I'm happy for the people who are already using and trying to sell this product, as I know it is great. But on the other hand, I'm a bit surprised the company didn't launch a lifetime free version that's fully functional and accessible once, as is their case with other games from them. I know many people prefer to try for free before purchasing, as they have this feeling they are buying in. However, I'm not sure of the proposed business model, in order to make the first months they intend to make available for purchase after a "free" full version.

personally, I think they were wrong about not releasing their lifetime free version, as for me this is definitely a good marketing strategy in how to present the game. As many other people, I never bought a game in my life. My hard drive is full with them, but if I had to start playing this game, I surely wouldn't.
