Fluorocarbon emissions from anaerobic digestion of waste activated sludge in a pilot-scale digester. The primary purpose of this study was to evaluate emissions of fluorocarbons (F-C) from anaerobic digestion (AD) of waste activated sludge in a pilot-scale digester. Samples were collected at a wastewater treatment plant in California and analyzed for F-C through thermal desorption gas chromatography mass spectrometry (TD-GC-MS). Sludge from the pilot digester and two full scale digesters, operated under oxic conditions, were also collected for a comparative analysis. F-C emission factors were calculated based on the method of Hangoe et al. (1998) and Doordin et al. (1998) and Doordin et al. (1998) and Doordin et al. (1995) method was much lower, 0.10, suggesting that the VFA concentration is not a major factor influencing the CF4 emissions during anaerobic digestion. The source of the emission is believed to be a mixture of volatile fluorinated chemicals formed by the
