EBSCOhost.Q: Javascript Not Working In Some Intranet Sites There is a web site which I have access to one of its section. This site has JavaScript and jQuery but it is not working in all browsers. This site is not a ASP.NET site, instead it is a stand alone HTML. When I click the button it is not working in any browser, IE 9. It seems to work in IE 6 to 8 and Firefox. What might the issue? A: It happens some time with old IE. You have to delete the cache and the online history of the browser. Works fine for me in IE 6. Can you provide more information? Martin and I originally met when I was trying to start up a band named Scorpios Bloodbath. Unfortunately there was a power issue at the time and we were still building up a fanbase, but I think he would've been a good thing for the band, even if it didn't turn out. JH: And he found it in another band? BY: At the time, I think we were playing in a punk band called R.I.P. so when I got into thrash, I knew that Martin would be the guy for me. Martin's riffs are so chaotic and totally original, and that's the kind of thing I wanted to write songs for. JH: The lyrics are kinda complex, but they're also interesting too. Did you always write like that? BY: Yeah, I suppose. The lyrics are supposed to be complex, and I do a lot of writing in my own time at home, but the songs end up sounding simple once I'm done. Martin and I grew up together so we were always talking about music. We'd be listening to stuff all the time and even though we both had other bands at the time, it was mostly Scorpios Bloodbath for a few months. We stopped that when it was obvious that we were both talking about putting something together. JH: I thought it was only you guys? BY: There was another band at the time, but he left for a long time and I just didn't get around to replacing him. JH: Did it bother you at all that your first band together both turned out to be a double act?
