After calling GDB with a base address (and all else being correct), I get an error message: WARNING: Unable to read mapping information from /proc/self/maps; assumed none error; process can't access /proc/self/maps: no such file or directory If I hit enter, GDB will drop back into shell mode and not go back to the main interactive GDB. However, if I exit shell mode and relaunch GDB (using /usr/local/bin/gdb), the error message will not appear. It is more of a "seen this once" and "I'll just live with it" kind of thing. This does not always happen, just one out of hundreds of occasions (there are times when the error message does not appear). Any ideas? A: I would double check your environment variables. I used to get that very infrequently, and I found that uninstalling gcc 5 and installing gcc 4.9 fixed it. I know that's not an ideal solution, but if you try that, you'll know if it's your environment configuration. i s t h e t h i r d b i g g e s t v a l u e i n 3 , - 0 . 3 , 1 / 2 , 0 . 1 ? 0 . 1 W h a t i s t h e s e c o n d
