Â· Crack Download Deep Web Explorer 7.5 Keygen.Q: Python: best way to make a list of all of my web links So I am just starting out and I don't know what the best way is to go about this task. Basically I have a bunch of websites. I want to make a list of every website I have ever visited. I want to put that into an excel spreadsheet so I can look at it at any time. I don't know if this is the best way to do it but I could just go through and download all of the html of each site and then convert them into a list or something like that. Is there a quicker or better way of doing it?

A: I would use a dictionary in the form of `d = {site_1.website : [site_2, site_3], site_2.website : [site_3, site_4], site_3.website : [site_4, site_5], ... }` Where the sites are the unique identifiers for each site you visit. For example, to visit only one site on the web, you would do something like `d['the_site.com'] = [the_site_2,the_site_3]` The find the pages by each site in your original list of sites: `from urllib.parse import urlparse all_pages = [page.split('/')[1] for page in all_pages]` This will be the dictionary of all the links you have visited on the internet. To use this, you can get the number of pages on each page you visit in a sorted list. Then you iterate over the sorted list of links you have and count up the ones you have seen. When you encounter a new link that you have not seen before, append it to the list you are working on and
