During the day, it moves slowly along its orbit and stays roughly at the same distance from our sun as Neptune. This is a day of rest and a day of sorrow for the crew of the spaceship. During the night, the planet moves close to the sun. The ship gains more speed while moving around the sun. At sunrise, the spaceship starts moving away from the sun. Can you see the spaceship at sunrise? Note: I'm playing on the Local Machine. There is a setting'sunrise' on the Local Machine configuration. A: The spaceship is not visible at the sun's corona at sunrise. If you save the game you'll see it next time you start it up. The spaceship is travelling on a relatively low orbit around the Sun. But the Sun is radiating huge amounts of energy over a large surface area. That means the planet's own corona radiation would be quite blinding. To prevent that, the Sun must increase the intensity of radiation. That is done by increasing the fire power of the Sun. Q: R, Performance on dataframes - %in% This is an investigation of the performance of %in% I will try to explain as much as I can. I have a dataframe with 2 columns: ID and Surname. I'll call for example these 2 columns x
